14.  Met with Robert E. Lockhart, Assistant Counsel, House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, who told me that there has been no further progress by the Waldie Subcommittee (Subcommittee on Retirement and Employee Benefits) on the "constitutional rights of federal employees" legislation in that Subcommittee. There are no plans for further hearings at the moment.

As for H. R. 10700, Labor Management Relations bill, now pending in the Subcommittee on Manpower and Civil Service, House Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, hearings were held early in the month but there are many more individuals and organizations to be heard from on the scheduling of the present hearings. By the pace of the hearings, Lockhart does not see any final legislation during this session, particularly in view of the administration's objections to the several bills under consideration.
